CROSS GROUP COLLABORATION

Working jointly with multiple teams and departments is a key skillset for success in any organization. Today's workplace involves diverse workgroups with varying disciplines, cultures and even physical locations and time zones. The need for effective team collaboration is more critical than ever, and can mean the difference between meeting project deliverables on time, managing budgets and satisfying clients and stakeholders.

This program addresses the challenges of working across teams, explores the work dynamics unique to each team, and focuses on creating the best possible team interactions to ensure success.

Effective Cross Group Collaboration is based on building trust and reliability between work groups, by establishing clear needs, expectations and boundaries. This enhances the success of projects, by boosting morale, reducing misunderstandings, re-work and unnecessary conflict.

Program Details

This program begins by providing a simple-to-follow process and structure for team members to understanding the goals, structures, data acquisition processes, timelines and deliverables for each group they must collaborate with. It also supports group members in developing approaches that streamline decision making for successful project completion. The program also includes communication skills on how to influence with emotional intelligence.

Cross Group Collaboration is a ½ day program that can be delivered in real time as a Cross Group Facilitation approach with all group members involved in a project, or as a Training Program for those involved in Cross Group projects. Both approaches are highly interactive and focus on building skills. And using tools that are immediately relevant to their current projects and deliverables.
